

Issue: Email System Logi Issue

An issue has been identified with the email system related to Logi functionality, which is currently under investigation.

Steps to Resolve:

- Review the work notes for any previous troubleshooting steps taken.
- Check the email system logs for any error messages related to Logi.
- Verify the configuration settings of the email system.
- Consult with the System Administrator for insights on the issue.
- Attempt to replicate the issue in a test environment.
- Document any error codes or messages encountered during replication.
- Review any recent changes made to the email system that could have caused the issue.
- Engage with the vendor support for Logi if the issue persists.
- Update the incident record with findings and next steps.
- Communicate with the affected users regarding the status of the incident.

Technical Details:

The incident is related to the email system's Logi functionality. The logs indicate potential errors, but specific error messages have not been detailed yet. The configuration of the email system needs to be verified to ensure it aligns with operational standards.

Complete Description:

An issue has been identified with the email system related to Logi functionality, which is currently under investigation. The incident is categorized as a Software Bug. The logs indicate potential errors, but specific error messages have not been detailed yet. The configuration of the email system needs to be verified to ensure it aligns with operational standards. Steps to resolve include reviewing work notes, checking logs, verifying configurations, consulting with the System Administrator, replicating the issue, documenting errors, reviewing recent changes, engaging vendor support, updating the incident record, and communicating with affected users.